New Robotic Welder

Quality Perforating Inc. (QPI) is at it again. In our never ending quest to offer our customers more value added services, we recently purchased a. This equipment allows us to provide additional options to customers to become more of a "one stop" shop. The welds provided by this robot are cleaner and more consistent than if performed manually, and also can be accomplished in much less time. QPI can make special jigs for high volume jobs with incredible repeatability. Click on the image to see an example.

In this short video, the robot is welding perforated ribs to flat bar stock to make an electrical raceway. So if your next project requires welding, please do not be afraid to ask your customer service representative.
